WHAT IS A HACKATHON

A hackathon is an event where programmers and engineers compete in teams in order to design, build and ship original software in just 24 hours.

We provide a collaborative, challenging and exciting platform for students to finally bring their dream projects to life.

By creating a space that allows tech-oriented college students to come together, hackathons create an opportunity like no other: participants can develop their creativity, problem-solving and teamwork skills in a fun and competitive environment.

WHERE WILL IT BE HELD

We are bringing together 400+ of the world's most creative and passionate students to Drexel University in Philadelphia, PA for the annual edition of DragonHacks – 24 hours of software and hardware hacks to create groundbreaking new products from scratch in one weekend!

WHY SPONSOR DRAGONHACKS

Ever heard of a start-up being successful without funds and the essential support from the industry? In supporting DragonHacks, your company is giving students the opportunity to explore their technical skills in an exciting and creative event.

You are facilitating the entrepreneurial spirit in the students to grow. The event is scheduled to be held in the heart of the University City area at the border of two major university campuses- Drexel University & the University of Pennsylvania. Imagine the brightest minds from far and wide coming together to network and collaborate under one roof! Something great is in store for production!

Hackathons help inspire young engineers, computer scientists, designers, and anyone interested in technology to be innovative, to gain skills outside those taught in classes. We want to offer this experience to as many interested students as we can, and we cannot do this without your help!
